DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Newly submitted claims 12,13 and 16-18 are directed to an invention that is independent or distinct from the elected invention.

These method claims are dependent from non-elected claims and are distinct from the elected invention for the reasons set forth in paper #4.

Accordingly, claims 12,13 and 16-18 are withdrawn from consideration as being directed to a non-elected invention.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 8 - 10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

With respect to claim 8, the prior art does not teach or render obvious the total combination as claimed including a golf ball having a basic resin further containing a polymer which is substantially free of hydroxyl groups.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

Art Unit: 2854

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5, 11, 14 and 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hirukawa et al. (JP11139095) in view of Yang.

Hirukawa et al. (JP11139095) teaches a pattern directly printed on a surface of the golf ball body (See page 1, paragraph 0001) with use of a transfer foil, the pattern being defined by an ink comprising a basic resin (See paragraph 007) containing a polyurethane having a hydroxyl value (See page 1, paragraph 0008) of less than 0.2 and a coloring agent (the ink) and a clear coat (see page 2, paragraph 0024) formed over the pattern and the ball body surface. Hirukawa et al. doesn't teach a polyurethane having the claimed molecular weight.

Yang teaches having a hydroxyl value having a weight-average molecular weight of 20,000 to 60,000 (See col. 4, lines 10 – 15).

It would be obvious to modify Hirukawa et al. to have a polyurethane having the claimed molecular weight as taught by Yang because the ink composition is at it's best for wear and durability when at that range.

With respect to claim 11, Hirukawa et al. doesn't teach a golf ball wherein the basic resin consists essentially of the polyurethane. Yang teaches a golf ball wherein the basic resin consists essentially of the polyurethane (Col. 3, lines 65 - 67).

Art Unit: 2854

It would be obvious to modify Hirukawa et al. to have a golf ball wherein the basic resin consists essentially of the polyurethane as taught by Yang because it is a good binding agent for the ink composition.

Response to Arguments

With respect to applicant's argument about the restriction requirement, the restriction requirement was previously made final and that applicant's arguments were addressed in the previous office action.

Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 5 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Specifically, Hirukawa et al. teaches all that is claimed of having a transfer foil for printing a pattern using an ink on a golf ball.

Yang has been added to teach the range of the polyurethane having an average molecular weight. With the respect to the applicant's argument about "routine experimentation", that with testing printed ink on golf balls which composition of the molecular weight of the ink on the golf ball would be the most effective when the ball is in use for durability and wear.
